Disasterous Prairie Fires

Numbers to Assist in
- Fighting Fire.

A prairie fire occurred east of town on Monday which did a great amount of damage before it was finally controlled. The origin of the fire is not known, but the blaze started in a stable owned by Mr. Frank Sullivan on 14-37-5, shortly after noon. At the time the fire was first noticed two teams of horses and one team of mules were in the stable. Of these, one team of horses and one team of mules were saved. One of the mules saved itself by jumping through one of the stable windows. One team of horses belonging to Mr. Stanley Gray was burned to death.

Before the high wind which was blowing at the time the fire spread with alarming rapidity over a large area and it was not until a tremendous amount of damage had been done that the fire was finally controlled.

Col. Naysmith Will Recruit 89th. Batta.

Word was received here last week that Col. Naysmith will recruit the 89th. Battalion, and it is likely that another recruiting campaign will be commenced in this district in the near future.

At the present time in the neighborhood of twenty men have signified their intention of joining this battalion and it is anticipated that as many more will be forthcoming, when recruits are officially asked for. Capt. Robinson, a St. Julien veteran, will be on Col. Naysmith's staff as will be the Rev. "Bob" Pearson, who has resigned his office as secretary of the Calgary Y. M. C. A. to take a commission.

Dominion Inspector For Grain Commission Spends Day in Town

Mr. A. F. Campbell, Dominion Inspector for the Grain Commission spent a day in town this week investigating conditions here.

The unsatisfactory facilities here for loading and unloading cars and getting same "spotted" have been bitterly complained of by merchants and farmers alike.

The present situation requires immediate relief. The Acadia Grain Co. have their elevator full up, and the building is settling at one side. If cars are not immediately forthcoming, serious trouble may occur. The Farmers Elevator has been filled three times and has been unable to take grain from the farmers because it could not get cars fast enough to unload and make room for the steady stream of grain which is pouring into town. The Alberta Pacific Elevator is practically in the same position.

Just what Mr. Campbell's report contained we do not know but it is not difficult to conjecture that "Conditions are most unsatisfactory" would find a

An Interesting Letter

From one Who Has Spent Eight Years in Berlin.

This letter has been received by H. N. Brown from his sister now staying at St. Moritz, Switzerland. Miss Brown has been resident in Berlin for over eight years and has been a teacher of the English language there.

My Dear Hugh:

It is indeed ages since I have been able to write to you or Minnie. I was glad to hear from home that you were all well. The last year was so especially horrible and I am indeed glad to be out of Germany. I could not write many letters. I was under police control the whole time and had to go twice a day to the police station to report myself. Was never allowed out after 8 p.m. or before 7 a.m. and might not leave my school district.

The Germans were half mad with hate. At the beginning they thought they were going to squash everybody—in trade and devastate England and be finished by Christmas. They expected to get huge war indemnities. They declared at first that all our colonies and India would rise up against us and we should be reduced to nothing. Later on when Canada and Australia were sending soldiers they said "Those men can't fight, and that is nothing". They have gone for the war hammer and tools and women are being more largely employed than ever. When I came away nearly all the street cars had women conductors alone in Berlin. Women are ploughing etc. There is not any chance for anyone to strike in Germany. If the men won't work they are just called up as soldiers and if they don't go they are shot.

The Americans begged me to go away last year and said it was dangerous to stay for as food got dearer the Germans might get up a revolution. I roared at the idea of those sheep doing that, though the war is making more socialists. The people do whatever they are told and whatever the higher powers command is just and right. For instance, in March an order was posted up that everybody was to display flags and ring bells. They all flagged and rang but had no idea why. They hate the English so and in November I felt that if the Commander of Berlin had ordered all English women to be shot the people would only have said how well organized the whole thing was and not a person was shot out of time. I had an American passport and only had to have it stamped by four different people before leaving. The Americans, the governor of Berlin, the Police Lieutenant and the Swiss Embassy. I really spent a year in prison and could not go out anywhere. Well I must stop soon or you will be weary. Let us hope the Allies get a great victory soon. . . . We managed to get the "Times" in Berlin through Amsterdam. Everybody reads foreign papers in Germany and especially the Times. The Daily Mail is seldom let through.

Sir Edward Grey is hated with deadly hatred. One bookseller called him a "Pig-Dog" to me so I said "He is very clever" and bolted. I hope nobody in Canada will ever grant land to Germans again. Such a cruel and successful race ought to suffer if there is any justice in the world. I heard officers sneering say that English wounded often died of heart disease or sun stroke on the way to the hospital and one Red Cross man said they never hardly had any English wounded on the ambulance train and if they had any they generally died of heart disease on the way.

Among those who suffered loss from the fire were: Mr. Sullivan, between six and seven hundred bushels of wheat. Mr. Denton, eight acres of wheat; Mr. H. Johnston, thirty-five acres of wheat. Mr. Carl Thomas, forty acres of wheat. Mr. Duncan Patterson, fifty acres of wheat. Mr. Percy Turner, his whole crop of thirty five acres, less eleven shocks. Mr. Wm. Baker, three acres of wheat, a barn, seven pigs and two calves and miscellaneous wagon racks, etc.

In the work of fighting the fire, splendid work was done by the crew of Mr. Chas. Brown's threshing outfit and Mr. Percy's outfit, and a host of homesteaders, assisted by a number of townspeople who arrived on the scene in cars.

Shortly after this fire had been observed from town, another fire started on Mr. H. B. Fox's farm, north of town, and those who were able to secure seats in cars were quickly rushed out to the scene of the fire to render whatever assistance they could. This fire broke out where Mike Neville's outfit was at work. The strenuous efforts of the crew were all but successful in controlling the blaze then in its early stages, but fanned before a strong wind, the flames jumped across a trail and efforts to extinguish them became futile.

Mr. H. B. Fox lost several tons of hay, a sod stable and garage, his house narrowly escaped. The fire attracted the crews of four outfits, a number of homesteaders and several townspeople. After two and a half hours strenuous work the fire was extinguished without further damage being done apart from the loss of "prairie wool".

Wedding

Perry-Morrison

The marriage of Mr. James Perry of Oyen, and Miss Annie Morrison of Orangeville, Ont., was solemnized in Saskatoon, on Wednesday, October 6th. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Eby, Methodist Minister.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry arrived in Oyen on Wednesday morning and later in the day left for their farm about eight miles south of town.

Malcolm McDonald Visits Oyen

Malcolm McDonald, the first Oyen man to enlist for active service, arrived in town on Monday morning and spent three days with his friends here. As stated in the Oyen News last week, McDonald has received an honorable discharge from the army, being unfit for further service. During the three-day fighting which took place near La Bassa in June 'Mar' was dangerously wounded in the head by a shrapnel bullet, and operations were necessary to remove the bullet from his skull.

His friends in town were never tired of listening to his reminiscences and the bullet which nearly privied his undoing was handled with considerable interest.

Mr. McDonald left town this morning for Dumald, from which town he will return to his home in Saskatoon for a short visit after which he will return to Oyen where he will stay permanently.

Sittings of the District Court held at Hanna

Sittings of the District Court of the District of Calgary were held at Hanna, on Wednesday, the 13th, inst. His Honor Judge Winter presiding, when the following local cases were before the Court:

Chicago University of Commerce vs. M. G. Trussler, Sibbald. This case was continued from the last Court to enable the Defendant, who pleaded minority, to produce an official certificate of his birth. The Defendant now produced a Statutory Declaration by his father as to date of his birth but the Judge held this was insufficient and again continued the case until next Court in order that the Defendant might produce a certificate.

F. C. McClean, Barrister, Oyen was for the Plaintiff and W. C. Robinson, Barrister, Youngstown, appeared for the Defendant.

James Barney Fisher, vs. Danyieluck, Cappa. This was an action for the return of a Percheron stallion, or payment of $200.00, the value thereof, and there was also a claim of $100.00 for detention. The Plaintiff lost a Percheron stallion belonging to him on the 26th of March last, which, after a search, he alleged he found in the Defendant's barn. The Defendant maintained the animal was his property and refused to deliver it up. A large number of witnesses were called on each side as to the identity of the animal and the evidence was very conflicting. The Judge intimated that he would be unable to give a decision until he himself made an inspection of the animal or got a report from an independent party and suggested that such a report should be got.

F. C. McClean was for the Plaintiff and W. C. Robinson for the Defendant.

Paul C. Miller, Esq., vs. Albert Bakken, Esq. This was an appeal from a conviction in the J. P. Court at Oyen, for non-payment of wages in which the complainant got judgment for $80.00 and costs. The complainant entered the Defendant's service on the 22nd of March last on an engagement at the rate of $30.00 per month for the season. The complainant alleged that the engagement was subject to the qualification "if they agreed" but this the Defendant denied. The Defendant paid the complainant $40.00 about the 1st of May. On the 8th of June, the complainant again asked for money but the Defendant told him that he could not have any until after harvest and threshing. On the 21st of June, the complainant repeated the request for money and was again refused. There upon he left the Defendant's service and entered a complaint with a J. P. under the Master and Servant Ordinance. Judge Winter sustained the appeal, holding that the conviction was wrong in respect that there had been no demand made for wages; that the contract was an entire one for the season; that the respondent was not justified in leaving the appellant's service and that the appellant was not bound to pay the respondent any wages whatever until the end of the season unless he chose. Costs were given against the respondent.

H. M. Hois, Barrister, Hanna, was for the appellant and F. C. McClean, for the respondent.

Kitchener Says He Must Have More Men at Once

The Birmingham Post has received the following from Lord Kitchener to the people of Birmingham, with reference to the recruiting campaign in that city:

"I want more men, and still more, if the armies now in the field and armies which will in their turn proceed abroad are to be kept at their proper strength. I appeal earnestly to all men who are able-bodied and can be spared to respond to the call, unless they are satisfied to allow the many lives given by their gallant fellow-townsmen to have been given in vain. I can only do my duty by the country if you do yours by me. We must have more men at once."

Sir Edward Grey

It is difficult to see any real regard for the welfare of Great Britain or her Allies in the extraordinary attack which was made at the end of last week upon Sir Edward Grey and the British Foreign Office. The pretext for that attack was furnished by the action of Bulgaria in openly joining herself to the Central Empires, and by the fact that a high official in the Central Empires has a little German blood in his ancestry and that Sir Edward Grey's knowledge of foreign language is limited. It is putting it mildly to say that the entire nation, the entire Empire, and indeed the whole world rubbed its eyes with astonishment at the spectacle of this attack upon a man who, it had been supposed, enjoyed the confidence of every element in the British political body, and who has been almost defied during the early part of the war on account of the skill with which he worked for peace until the last moment and so maneuvered things that when Britain did enter the war it was upon a platform which commanded the absolute support of every right-thinking and practical-minded Britisher.

The public response to the rally-cries "Down with Grey" has been even less promising than that which attended the former trumpet-call, from the same quarter, "Out with Kitchener." The great majority of the British people realize that diplomacy in the Balkan States is an extremely difficult game, in which not even British diplomats can expect always to win, especially among the dice loaded years in advance which are employed by the Central Empires. They are willing to accept Sir Edward Grey's opinion of the fidelity and ability of his subordinates quite as readily as that of Lord Northcliffe. And they believe that the acuteness and straightforwardness of Sir Edward Grey are fully as valuable to the nation and the Allies as the "gift of tongues" could be.

Internal warfare such as this is obviously calculated to afford the utmost gratification to the enemy. It may lead to a certain extent restrict the freedom of action and impair the nervous forces of our rulers. For both reasons it is open to the most serious objections, and should only be practiced when there is the gravest cause for it in the maladministration of the persons attacked. Even then a patriotic newspaper would employ all the private means at its disposal to effect an improvement, by personal representations to the other members of the Government and perhaps the Sovereign, before resorting to the supremely dangerous weapon of public agitation. The longer the war lasts, and the more we are treated to these repeated spectacles of co-operative attacks upon high officials by a certain group of newspapers, the more difficult does it become to describe them to patriotic motives.—Beck's Weekly.

The British Fist

I read in the papers the other day that "fists and the butts of rifles" were principle weapons employed by the British troops when they piled pell-mell into the German trenches in the progress of the great drive.

It is now easier to understand why the Germans were driven back, mile upon mile, in such disorder. For the good solid fist is far from being a favorite weapon in Germany, where boxing is an almost unheard-of sport. Even when the matter of including boxing in the Olympic games was taken up, the delegates from Germany made many objections. Even now boxing is frowned upon in the Kaiser's country, and the Emperor is alleged to have a prejudice against the game. There is a story to the effect that the British sport has been under the ban of the Hohenzollerns ever since 1748, when Jack Broughton, then champion of England, visited Prussia as the protégé of the Duke of Cumberland. The latter boasted much of the prowess of the pugilist, but Broughton was not very happy physically, and Frederick the Great expressed the opinion that anyone of his grandeur could make quick work of the pugilist. A match was therefore made between Broughton and a picked man from a grenadier regiment, a giant who stood nearly six feet and a half and who looked able to whip Broughton with one hand. The English boxer, however, found it only child's play to punch the big soldier, and the pride of the regiment was soon strewn on the ground, very much like de combat. Since then, it is alleged, the Prussian royal family has inherited a prejudice against boxing. So it is quite easy to understand that the German soldiers had no relish for the hearty wallop of the good two-handed punchers in the ranks of Tommy Atkins.
